

“Royal Marines Rescue Stricken Climbers on Everest”

(Times, 24 May 2003)

Nick Arding – Inspirational Speaker

During the spring of 2003 Nick lead the Royal Navy expedition to climb the North Ridge of Mount Everest. Over the past seven years Nick has spoken throughout the UK and internationally about his epic adventure during which his team not only summited the 8850m peak but also rescued two members from another expedition. As a result of the rescue members of the team were awarded six Royal Humane Society Bronze Medals, the Society’s Silver Medal and the Stanhope Gold Medal, with Nick personally being awarded one of the bronze medals. In 2005 Nick was awarded the OBE for his work throughout the project.

Nick speaks in a fluent and self-effacing way about leadership of a high performing team in the face of considerable danger in an extremely hostile environment. His talk covers the challenge of formulating and managing the two year project, of leading the team and dealing with challenging personnel issues and coping with considerable technical difficulties and finally, orchestrating a complicated and highly dangerous rescue during which he personally led one of the rescue teams despite his own debilitating eye injury.

Monday 22nd November 2010
in Melvin Hall, Kelly College, Tavistock
at 7.30pm

Join Nick for a unique evening as he recounts his extraordinary experience with stunning visuals

Limited places available, pre-booking required
Cost: £5 per person £3 Concession (OAP & Students)

To register please call 01822 616235
or email kellyenterprises@kellycollege.com

“That was a fantastic summary of leadership at it’s best, the most striking aspect of which was your humility”
Jack Russell – Rotary, July 2008

“Brilliant, you tailored your presentation to our safety seminar in a way no speaker has done before, the team were on the edge of their seats!”
BP Safety Seminar – February 2009